ORGANIZATION OVERVIEW (which could include mission, history, and demographics served):

The mission of Utah Labor Community Services is to assist working families, many of which are struggling to make ends meet due to unemployment, layoffs, being injured on the job or illness. We believe these types of hardships should not sink a family into financial ruin, workers and their families are faced with difficult choices daily, do they put food on the table or gas in the car? Utah Labor Community Services provides them with a safety net and a support system so they can meet those daily needs to get by until their family hardship has passed. We are doing our part in the Salt Lake County community to help make a change, we are in this fight together and we are here to make a difference where we can provide one. We recently assisted many TSA families that were forced to work with no pay during the government shutdown, many of which both incomes came to a sudden stop and were faced with having to work for free while still having to pay their mortgage, child care, gas, utilities and food, all the while being threatened by their employer if they didn't show for work they would be fired. We provided gas cards, food and diapers when many felt their ship was sinking rapidly. Daily we are here for families that Dad or Mom have been injured on the job and cannot provide a warm meal or a dry diaper, the needs are great for struggling families. The majority of our demographic is young working families living paycheck to paycheck, however we see our fair share of mature workers that run into hardships as well, we do not turn any age away.

The basic principal of the Utah Labor Community Services is that the union member is, first and foremost, a citizen of the community who cooperates with other citizens in making the community a good place in which to live, to work, to raise children and retire. The union member is concerned about the availability of adequate health and human - care services for the entire community.

How Unions Help People

Unions help people and communities in many different ways. Union volunteers collect food, build wheelchair ramps, raise funds for charities, donate blood and provide services for the elderly, the unemployed, children and those with disabilities.

After disasters, union volunteers are often the first on the scene, donating their meeting halls, their skills and their money to help people get back on their feet.

When workers are unemployed, unions help with counseling and training on how to find a job and how to get help with food and bills.

Union Labor Center Food Pantry

Utah Labor Community Services is fortunate to have a food pantry to assist those unemployed and injured workers to provide for their families during difficult times.
