Clark Planetarium Advisory Board: Submitted

Qualifications

Please tell us about yourself.

My name is Pat Neville, I am an associate attorney in the Salt Lake City office of Kirkland & Ellis where I practice antitrust litigation. I attended the University of Utah's S.J. Quinney College of Law and am a lifelong Utah football fan. Before entering the legal profession, I attended the University of Redlands where I received a degree in physics. I am still a scientist at heart--I try to stay caught up on the James Webb telescope, I read academic literature, and I watch every black hole documentary I can find. I am also an avid fan of the Utah Jazz and I starting to take up road biking.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

I am interested in serving on the Board of the Clark Planetarium for two reasons. First, as previously mentioned, I have always been curious about our universe and would love to opportunity to be involved at the local planetarium. Second, as someone who has lived in Salt Lake for most of my life, I want to start giving back to the community. The planetarium feels like the perfect place to combine my intellectual passions while serving the community.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

My experience as an attorney gives me a unique perspective that would be helpful to the Planetarium. My practice focuses on economic issues in the antitrust sphere, which gives me unique insights into budgetary issues and acquisitions. As a life long resident of Salt Lake City, I also have knowledge of the area and I have a large network of contacts.

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

As a 29 year old professional, I may be able to offer insights into new technological channels to reach younger audiences. I am also an active attorney, paid to strategically analyze documents and cases. I can bring this skill set to problems facing the Planetarium.
