Re: Open Space Trust Fund Advisory Committee Nominees

Dear Mayor Wilson,

Salt Lake County Parks & Recreation respectfully requests your consideration of the following renewal and nominees for the Open Space Trust Fund Advisory Committee:

Kael Weston (renewal)
Benjamin Cook
Deborah Gatrell

Carrie Butler
Bennion Gardner
Angela Gong

Kael Weston is an at-large member whose first term ended in December 2021. Kael is interested in completing a second term and provides extensive policy experience and government relations skills.

Carrie Butler would represent district 5 and brings a unique and much-needed public health perspective. She is interested in improving quality of life, health, and the overall cost of caring for our communities and recognizes the value open spaces provide to health and wellness.

Benjamin Cook has deep roots in Utah and would represent district 6. He has a passion for data-driven, community-focused, problem-solving decisions, and, as a single professional, brings a perspective outside the traditional family-user viewpoint.

Bennion Gardner would represent district 2, is active in community engagement, and founded the Oquirrh Foundation to increase preservation and awareness of the importance of open space.

Deborah Gatrell would be an at-large member and is a long-term educator and Utah National Guard pilot with a strong passion for future open space planning.

Lastly, Angela Gong would be an at-large member who brings environmental science, research, and finance skills to the committee. She moved to Utah because of the incomparable outdoor opportunities and is passionate about making open spaces available for all who live in and visit Salt Lake County.

In accordance with County ordinance, the nine-member advisory committee includes three at-large members and one representative from each County Council district.

As detailed in the accompanying applications and resumes, the nominees presented provide diverse perspectives and interests, as well as years of combined experience in government, public relations, environmental science, public health, and outdoor recreation.

Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Respectfully,

Martin Jensen, Director
Salt Lake County Parks & Recreation

Which Boards would you like to apply for?

Open Space Trust Fund Advisory Committee: Submitted

Referred by:

Qualifications

Please tell us about yourself.

I have been a Salt Lake County resident for 20 years. My family and I live in South Jordan and enjoy a lot of the recreation that the southwest valley has to offer. I currently serve as the executive director for the Utah Public Health Association, and have worked on policy initiatives within the state of Utah that improve air quality, improve access and affordability of health care, and improve safety. I have two children who attend schools in the Jordan School District and the world's cutest dog, named Sanderson Cooper. I like to hike, read, and explore.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

I have an interest in bringing a public health perspective to the board. I am particularly interested in how pace and accessibility to pace can impact overall health of individuals and communities.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

I have two advanced degrees in public health and public policy that I earned from the University of Utah. I have worked in advocacy at both the state and local level for several years and I have served on the board for Utah Moms for Clean Air and the Utah Child Care Cooperative. My work has been very cross sectional and has led to my participation in a variety of tangentially related but not completely connected sectors. This has given me a chance to create cross sectional collaboration to solve some really challenging policy issues we face as a state.

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

I am particularly interested in public health, and how implementing policies in an upstream way can improve quality of life, health, and overall cost of caring for our communities, including and specifically our most vulnerable ones. I believe this is a perspective that could be useful to the conversation when discussing the limited resources and open spaces left in our county.

Which Boards would you like to apply for?

Open Space Trust Fund Advisory Committee: Submitted

Referred by:

Qualifications

Please tell us about yourself.

As a lifelong resident of Utah, I'm a resourceful and creative leader with more than 15 years of experience. I graduate from the University of Utah and consider myself to be a lifelong learner. I am passionate about art, business, the outdoors, and ensuring that Utah cultivates healthy communities for generations to come. My family lives in Utah, with my Mom being a first generation immigrant and my Dad having deep ties to Cache Valley. I am singing with two adorable yellow Labrador retrievers.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

I was born and raised in Utah and love our beautiful communities and states. I'm looking for an opportunity to give back and serve our community in a meaningful way.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

I have an undergraduate degree in Communications from the University of Utah and am completing my Master's Degree in Marketing and Communications from Northwestern University this spring. I have more than 15 years of professional work experience including serving key leadership roles in both medium and large size companies. I have volunteered for community boards, worked in the Utah Courts as a mediator, pay ce on the Murray Symphony, and was the producer for Sandy City's production of Beauty and the Beast.

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

I believe I would bring a uniquely balanced perspective to the board. I'm someone who has deep roots and connections in Utah, yet a progressive viewpoint and vision for what our state should become. I use data to drive decisions making and believe that building consensus and strong collaborations across viewpoints is critical for success. I don't have an affiliation with a political party, so I work to find common sense solutions. Additionally, as a single professional I can bring a perspective outside the traditional family viewpoint.

Qualifications

Please tell us about yourself.

I live in South Jordan with my wife and two sons. We lived in Magna for 12 years before moving to Daybreak. In Magna I served as President of the Chamber of Commerce and worked with the County to strengthen the local economy. I also served on the board of The Ogden Theater, was a member of the Lions Club and served in other roles in the community. Two years ago I founded The Ogden Foundation to educate and educate students and organizations on the importance of preserving open space within and surrounding the Ogden Mountains.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

I am a lifelong resident of Salt Lake County. I have watched the valley grow over the years and have been frustrated with the lack of access to open space for residents on the west side of the County. I would love to share my insight and pass on to find opportunities for the County to provide more equitable access to the outdoors.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

As President of The Oquirrh Foundation I have been involved in and supportive of the County's efforts to add trails to Butterfield Canyon and plan for future growth through the West Bench General Plan. Through my professional work I am familiar with real estate and land use planning.

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

I think there are huge opportunities to add open space on the west side but time is running out given the current pace of development. The Oquirrh could help relieve pressure on the Wasatch Mountains. Preserving open space on the west side will also reduce the amount of driving residents need to do to access nature and help our air quality. I have spent a lot of time exploring the west bench and Oquirrh Mountains where public access is allowed. I would love to learn from other board members who have been working on open space issues for many years already. I think my unique perspective would add a beneficial component to the group.

Qualifications

Please tell us about yourself.

I've taught in Grande School District for the past 12 years and have also served in the Utah National Guard for 21, based out of South Valley Regional Airport for most of that time. I'm a National Board Certified Teacher and a Lieutenant Colonel in the 300th MI BDE based out of Draper. I also teach as adjunct faculty through SLCC.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

I have watched the Salt Lake Valley change dramatically from the area as a portion in the National Guard over the past two decades, and I would like to be involved in planning for the future to better meet resident needs as the last open space in the valley gets built out in the near future.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

As a Geography teacher, I have a strong background in sustainable development. As a Soldier, I have training in Military Intelligence analysis and problem solving in complex situations.

Deborah Gatrell

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

As a professional military pilot, I am always looking at the big picture and looking ahead. We need to be proactive rather than reactive. I am also a patron of the arts, as I enjoy the Utah symphony and periodically attend events at the West Valley Cultural Celebration Center. I love hiking, but am sorely disappointed that there are so few trails on the West side of the valley. The trails on the East bench are great, but the canyons are overrun. I appreciate the network of trails in the cities that are being developed along canyons, the MVC, etc, and look forward to contributing to this effort.

Please tell us about yourself.

I remember coming to Utah to visit family as a child, and thinking that the mountains were the most magnificent things I'd ever seen. Now that I live here, I still think so. After growing up in New Hampshire, I came to Utah for college, where I studied Environmental Science, Economics, and Music. I have been working and studying education for the past 10 years, teaching middle school science for 4 four years, working in a large-scale national assessment (the NAEP), conducting educational research, and now teaching junior high school math. I returned to graduate school at Stanford for a joint master's program in Education and Public Policy. I've finished my first year of teaching in Granite School District, with interest in school leadership. After grad school, my husband and I were both working remotely and could have moved anywhere. We wanted to come to Salt Lake to be close to family and to enjoy the incomparable outdoor opportunities here. We're loving being here.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

I have always been interested in being in open spaces. As a child, I loved poking around in the woods behind my house in New Hampshire, discovering through experience the ecological principles and relationships I later studied formally when I majored in Environmental Science. I remember a class I took about ecology that often made me feel so down about the negative environmental impact humans have had on so many environments. Strangely, my classes for my minor, Economics, were what cheered me up--those classes convinced me that humans have the capacity to solve even complex, thorny problems. I still believe that. Although the Salt Lake Valley's population is slated to continue growing, we have the capacity to make sensible and forward-looking decisions about how we use land. When my sister-in-law, who works for the City of South Jordan, told me about the Open Space Trust Fund Advisory Committee, I leapt at the chance to serve. I'd love to be involved in helping make decisions about the land in our valley so our open spaces will continue to allow Salt Lake Valley's unique communities--including the human ones--to thrive.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

I have studied environments from the granular to the big picture level, and from ecological aspects to how humans influence and are influenced by those environments. As a teenager, I worked as a technician at the University of New Hampshire's Stormwater Center and as an assistant to a PhD student studying the effects of invasive common bedstraw on pasture soils in the Northeast. As an undergraduate I majored in Environmental Science and minored in Economics. I taught middle school science, often using my background in ecology to (or at least try to) inspire students to enjoy the curriculum. In graduate school I studied Public Policy. Last summer I took a Utah Master Naturalists course on Watersheds (offered through USU), which let me study from the top of the valley's watershed in the high Uintas down to the Great Salt Lake.

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

I am new to the valley but have deep family roots here--my mom grew up in Utah, and my parents came here for college--so I combine experience outside the valley with the love of a local. I have formally studied ecosystems and policies that shape them and the people that live there. I live on the east side of the valley but work on the west side. I hope to add a voice of passion for the environment with a head for the policies and finances that underpin our valley's open spaces to support making spaces that we come all the residents of Salt Lake County.

Department of State (1999-2010)

In early 1999, I was accepted into a State Department internship program in the International Organizations bureau. At the conclusion of my three-month internship, the Department hired me to assist in Security Council-related issues at the U.S. Mission to the UN. During this time, I was accepted into a Ph.D. program in London and, the following year, awarded a Fulbright Scholarship in the Netherlands. In 2000, I passed the Foreign Service written and oral exams (Political Cone) and was placed on the eligible hires list for new political officers while my Top Secret security clearance was being processed. Then 9/11 happened. The Department asked me to return to New York in fall 2001 to accept a policy position in the Political Affairs Section of the U.S. Mission to the UN.

Given new national security priorities focused on Al Qaeda and international counter-terrorism initiatives, the Department assigned me to lead U.S. efforts in the UN Security Council to freeze and block Al Qaeda-linked assets. In this role as the U.S. representative on the UN Security Council's Al Qaeda and Taliban Sanctions Committee, I drafted and negotiated Chapter VII UN Security Council resolutions. I was also a member of the U.S. Mission to UN's Iraq team in the run up to the Iraq War. Much of my work in this period focused on the UN Oil-for-Food Program and international sanctions regime on Iraq, in addition to overall counter-terrorism strategy in the multilateral setting.

My follow-on State Department assignments included seven consecutive years in Iraq and Afghanistan (2003-2010):

Coalition Provisional Authority, Baghdad (2003)

I was part of a small State Department contingent in Baghdad beginning in summer 2003 based at the Coalition Provisional Authority (CPA), which oversaw the U.S. administration of Iraq. I was assigned to work with Iraq's truckers in order to help ensure the movement of food and supplies across the country as the insurgency gained strength.

This was a sensitive and demanding job given the deteriorating security situation and rising discontent among large parts of the Iraqi population.

Fallujah, Iraq (2004-2007)

In summer 2004, Amb. John Negroponte asked me to be the State Department representative in Fallujah, where I acted as the political adviser to the commanding general (Gen. James Conway) of U.S. troops in western Iraq (mostly Marines, who numbered approximately 38,000 at the time). I reported directly to the embassy political counselor, Amb. Robert Ford, and Amb. Negroponte in Baghdad. I was responsible for devising the political strategy in Anbar Province, particularly in and around Fallujah. This period included “Operation Al Fajr” or “New Dawn” -- the biggest battle of the Iraq War. With Marines and soldiers, I helped lead U.S. efforts to rebuild the city and engage with local political, tribal, and religious leaders. This job involved coordinating with the U.S. military the actions of thousands of troops and millions of dollars in U.S. reconstruction funds. The State Department awarded me the Secretary of State’s Medal for Heroism for my work with the U.S. military in Fallujah and Anbar Province.

Khost Province, Afghanistan (2007-2008)

Upon leaving Fallujah in February 2007, the U.S. ambassador in Kabul (Amb. Ronald Neumann) asked me to be part of his forward-deployed team in Afghanistan. I represented the State Department for almost a year and a half in Khost Province located on the eastern edge of Afghanistan and one-time home of Osama bin Laden and Jalaluddin Haqqani. My work centered on Pashtun tribal engagement and close coordination across all political and military issues with Governor Arsala Jamal, the top Afghan official in the region. In my related role on the Khost Provincial Reconstruction Team, I helped direct approximately $50 million in reconstruction funds on high-priority projects, such as roads and other infrastructure, education, and reconciliation initiatives with former Taliban fighters. I focused my political reporting (cables to Washington) on “human capital” areas, such as engagement with university students, Khost University professors, ex-Taliban fighters, madrassa students and mullahs, and key Pashtun tribal leaders.

Sadr City, Iraq (2008-2009)

Midway through my second year in Khost, Ambassador Robert Ford requested I return to Iraq to join the embassy’s Political Section in October 2008, where he was again serving as the political counselor. Much like my role in Sunni-dominated Fallujah, I represented the State Department in this Shia section of Baghdad, home to millions of Iraqis who had been repressed under Saddam Hussein. My work focused on engaging local leaders in advance of an upcoming Iraqi election and impending U.S. troop drawdown. The embassy assigned me to determine the best way to reduce the U.S. military presence in the violent area. I also advocated a shift in policy to manage more effectively U.S. reconstruction funds (tens of millions of dollars) at a time when U.S. policy prioritized pressing the Iraqi central government to do more with its own resources.

Helmand Province, Afghanistan (2009-2010)

In spring 2009, while I was based in Iraq, the Marine commanding general of the 2nd Marine Expeditionary Brigade, then BGen. Larry Nicholson, requested that I be assigned to work with him as the State Department representative at Camp Leatherneck. (He and I had first worked closely together in Fallujah in 2006-2007, an especially red year in which we suffered 93 KIA in one Marine regiment.) The State Department approved my transfer. At the time, U.S. troop levels numbered just under 11,000 in Helmand Province. Within six months, BGen. Nicholson and I were overseeing a surge of troops into the Central Helmand River Valley, whose numbers rose to approximately 20,000 as President Obama escalated the war. The general's and my primary tasks included formulating counterinsurgency strategies in coordination with local leaders and the British government, which had ordered almost 10,000 of its own troops into the poppy-filled area. One of the biggest battles of the Afghanistan War (in a place called Marjah) occurred during the Marines' deployment and my time with them. I collaborated closely with Helmand Governor Mangal during this period, in addition to UK diplomats based in the provincial capital, Lashkar Gah. Helmand was the most violent province in the country during our time there, with the highest casualty count (KIA and WIA) among U.S. troops and British forces.

Private Sector: Caerus Associates and Deloitte Consulting
Washington, DC (2010-2015)

Based on my decade-long career in the State Department and assignments in some difficult places in Iraq and Afghanistan, I decided it was time to leave government service and begin to reflect, analyze, and write about these experiences. (Books being, I believe, their own kind of public service.) I wanted to focus on lessons learned and apply them more formally to the policymaking process. After resigning from the State Department in 2010, I worked as a consultant in the private sector for two companies: Caerus Associates, 2010-2013 (founded by Dr. David Kilcullen) followed by Deloitte Consulting, 2013-2015.

Knopf Doubleday Publisher
Penguin Random House
New York, NY (2012-present)

While transitioning from the private sector, I worked with a literary agent to sell a nonfiction book to Alfred A. Knopf, an imprint of Penguin Random House. I completed the 200,000-word manuscript in late summer 2015. Several rounds of editing followed through early 2016. The book is titled, The Mirror Test: America at War in Iraq and Afghanistan, and was published May 24, 2016. It is a first person account of America's two longest wars.
