Qualifications

Please tell us about yourself.

I was born and raised in Hawaii, the daughter of a Thai immigrant and a mainlander from Ohio, and I learned a lot about community building and placemaking from a young age. I volunteered in development-related focus groups in elementary school, served on the Hawaii State Student Council in high school, and worked for now-Congresswoman Jill Tokuda when she was at the State Legislature. I knew I wanted to work in local policy and have a bigger impact in shaping the communities I am a part of, so I majored in Public Policy, Management, and Planning at USC for college. I ended up in Utah after graduating in 2010 at the height of the Great Recession and earned my MS degree in Sociology from BYU before getting my first full-time paid job as Steve Mumford's Planning Intern at Eagle Mountain City. After six months, I was hired as a Planner I at Lehi City. I learned so much about interdepartmental coordination and working with developers through Lehi's organized Development Review Process, but eventually, I made the move to Park City. I worked there for two years as I was seeking to develop my experience in more established historic districts and tourist areas. It was there that I developed my passion for building more collaboration between the business community and government/planning processes. So many strategies for placemaking and community development are taking place in tourism and economic development without planners and without local government input. My long-term career goal is to find a way to bridge that gap. When the opportunity to make the move to Senior Planner came up at Saratoga Springs, I was still living in Lehi and jumped at that opportunity. I have been promoted to the City's Long Range Planner as we continue to grow quickly, and am in the middle of a two year term as the elected American Planning Association's Utah Chapter President.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

With almost 11 years of Utah-based planning experience under my belt, I would love to get more involved in my own community, especially now that I own my own townhouse in Daybreak. I have had a broad career in planning across the state in addition to an extensive travel resume that gives me a unique perspective on planning and development issues. I'd love to spend some time serving my own community by reviewing and making decisions to help shape the development that is happening across the County.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

Education: I studied Public Policy, Management, and Planning at USC for my undergraduate degree and Sociology with an emphasis on Community Development for my first master's degree. Work Experience: I spent 6 months as a Planning Intern at Eagle Mountain City, about 3.5 years as a Planner I and II at Lehi City, 2 years as a Planner II at Park City, and about 5 years as a Senior/Long Range Planner for Saratoga Springs. Volunteer Experience: American Planning Association leadership roles - * Utah Chapter | 2023-2024 Chapter President | 2017-2022 Assistant Professional Development Officer * Asian & Pacific Islander Interest Group | 2021-2023 Director of Membership * International Division | 2018-2020 Vice Chair. Special Projects | 2016-2018 Membership Coordinator

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

On top of my planning experience, I have traveled to 87 countries and all 7 continents. I have seen and experienced many places, and I love bringing ideas and examples from my travels to the table when solving planning problems. I am passionate about creative and thoughtful placemaking, and while I have thoroughly enjoyed my career so far, I am looking for more leadership opportunities in both my work and in the communities I serve.
