Arts and Culture Advisory Board: Submitted

Qualifications

Please tell us about yourself.

I am a long time resident of West Valley City. My parents are both from Mexico, with this type of environment as I grew up, culture became an important part of who I am. One of the things I love about the arts, is that it includes my life source, music. It has been something that follows me everywhere, a long shift at work, on my way to visit friends, or to help me feel an emotion that words alone cannot explain. Another thing that I like to bring up is our name connects us to our culture, for example, my last names reminds me of the rich history from both sides of my family and connects me to everything that had happened to make me, me. Culture doesn't always have to be art, it can also be a sport, like soccer. In Mexico, soccer can be bigger than life and is an integral part of the Mexican culture. I can attest to this. Every time the Mexican National team plays, I will catch myself cheering for players who are on rival club teams.

Why are you interested in serving on a board or commission?

I am interested in serving is to bring a new perspective to the table. People from all walks of life make for the best boards and/or commissions, as they might see things a little different. Some other reasons is to help make shows and events more accessible, so more of our neighbors and community could come together. As well as bringing more shows and events to the west side of Utah, as I happen to live in West Valley City. I think it is an untapped community that should be able to enjoy more arts and culture and a good community put our message and vision towards.

What education, work experience, or volunteer experience do you have that applies to the board you are applying for?

I've worked as a Healthcare Tech worker, Director of Equity and Hispanic Engagement, an interpreter, and a political candidate. Are all different roles I have taken a part that allowed me to see where arts and culture are connected. It is everywhere and in places one wouldn't imagine. Culture has a big part when it comes to interpreting, in the tech space many of my colleagues have all taken an interest in the fine art shows and a candidate/volunteer in politics I have seen the impact investing in arts and culture has had. All which have molded me into someone who has something to add to the conversations we would have on this board.

What unique perspectives could you bring to the board?

I have worked as a medical interpreter before and understand that many of our limited English proficiency communities deserve to enjoy the arts and culture as well. My language skill as a interpreter and child of immigrants can help us make our goals be more accessible to these communities. The same goes for my time as Director of Equity and Hispanic Engagement for Nick Mitchell's CD2 campaign. As well as spending my time as a Poli Sci Student. An integral part of a thriving community is having access to the arts. Finally, just as an everyday citizen who realizes the impact that many of these shows, galleries, and events have on local artists, storytellers, and people who might not have any other way to experience great shows at places that may have been out of reach otherwise. All of my experiences have given me the chance to hear from people, to hear their stories and better see how the arts and culture are an integral part of peoples everyday life. The beauty of it is there are so many stories, art forms as well as other mediums to share with our fellow neighbors here on SLCo.
